CONCLUSION OF THE MASS

The Communion Rite and the dismissal are the final actions of the Mass. After the consecration, the Lord is present on the altar, and so our reverence should reflect this as well.

THE LORD'S PRAYER: This is the perfect prayer taught to us by the Lord himself. It is a prayer directed to his Father and our Father, and we pray this together with the Lord present with us on the altar.

THE RITE OF PEACE: This rite, originally called the kiss of peace, has a long history in the church. As you know, there are some that are very uncomfortable with even shaking hands, while others could go on for some time. In the early centuries of Christianity, a kiss of peace when greeting others was normal, although that particular custom has not caught on in the United States outside the immediate family for the most part. Many of St Paul's letters reference a wish for communal peace among the members of a particular church. At the sign of peace, we need to take a moment to recall who is present upon the altar, and continue acting with reverence as we are in the presence of Christ in a very special way. Shaking hands with those in our immediate vicinity is an offering of peace to them, but it is also an invitation to make peace with anyone we might need to- whether they are in the church at that particular moment or not.

LAMB OF GOD: The Lamb of God, or Agnus Dei, is a prayer asking for mercy and forgiveness for our sins.

FRACTION RITE: this is a rite that might pass over the congregation, as it is difficult to see what is going on. Often during the Lamb of God, the priest takes the large host that was just consecrated, and breaks it in 2 or more pieces. He then breaks off a very small piece of the host and places it into the chalice with the precious blood. This is a reminder of the times Christ did something similar; breaking of the loaves to feed the 5000, and again to feed the 7,000; when he did this at the Last Supper and again in Emmaus, where the disciples recognized him in the breaking of the bread. At the same time, this reflects on the sacrifices made by Old Testament priests. For them, the blood and the body were completely separated, signifying the animal was dead. Here we commingle the body and blood, signifying life, the fullness of life promised by Jesus Christ.

HOLY COMMUNION: As we begin to come forward to receive Holy Communion, we recite a prayer right out of Sacred Scripture: Lord, I am not worthy that you should enter under my roof, but only say the word and my soul will be healed. (Mt 8:5-13) This is a prayer offered by a centurion, a pagan Roman officer seeking recovery from an injury or illness for one of his servants. We are acknowledging our unworthiness for Christ to enter under our roof, to enter into our soul; and at the same time we confess our belief that he can heal us of this unworthiness. Coming under our roof, he transforms us into him, into living, walking tabernacles being sent out into the world.

COMMUNAL MEDITATION: We have just received Jesus Christ under our roof, into our heart and soul; now is not the time to run for the doors, to beat the traffic out of the parking lot or get a jump on the crowd heading out for dinner or brunch, or whatever the reason may be. It is a time to kneel in gratitude as a communal body and as a singular apostle at the same time, in awe of what we have just experienced.

CONCLUDING RITE: FINAL BLESSING

Have you seen The Lord of the Rings or Star Trek? (Or any great action movie) Do you recall the moment Luke or Frodo (any hero or heroine) receives their commission? As they ready themselves to face something greater than themselves, where they accept their destiny and steel themselves for the trials ahead; this moment is similar to our final blessing. God is looking at each of us, pointing at us, proclaiming to you he believes in you and is asking great things of you. The final blessing is God giving us his marching orders to take him with us into the world, and his promise he will be with us in our mission. Missing the final blessing is missing a critical part of our mission.

RECESSIONAL: here we are being led out to do battle, to wage war against sin and declare God's message to those trapped in their sin. Propelled by the Spirit, we are being sent into God's creation to reclaim what rightfully belongs to him.

It is my prayer that these Lenten reflections will give us a greater appreciation for the Mass, and this may truly take hold of our hearts this Easter Season. God bless.

Fr. Jim
